There are so many reasons to travel to Bournemouth! We picked the best ones for you:

- Bournemouth is a very young town: before 1810, the area was a deserted heathland, the only visitors of which were fishermen and smugglers.

- Bournemouth beaches reach over 7 miles, from adjacent Christchurch to Sandbanks, Poole.
- The coastline just west of Bournemouth, called the Jurassic Coast, is England's first and only natural World Heritage Site and it's the only place where you can explore 185 million years of our history.
- Bournemouth was the first place in the UK to have purpose-built beach huts, built in 1909 and marked with a blue plaque near to the east of Bournemouth Pier
- Literary Lover? Well, you'll adore this next fact: Bournemouth has been home to some pivotal writers of our time, such as JRR Tolkien, Enid Blyton and Mary Shelley. Mary Shelley herself is buried in Bournemouth with her husband's heart.
- After Liverpool and London, Bournemouth is the UK town where The Beatles played the most concerts – there must have been something they liked down here, like the lovely town perhaps?
- Bournemouth Beach has been named the best beach in the British Isles, in an annual round-up of the world's best beaches. The seven-mile English beach was ranked sixth best in Europe and 20th in the world, according to TripAdvisor, for its golden sand and views of the Isle of Wight.
